PICCIRILLO HANDICRAFT CENTER

About Us

Piccirillo Handicraft Center was established and developed in the year 2014 as a project of “John Paul II Foundation in partnership with the Custody of The Holy Land” to sustain the traditional handicrafts of Bethlehem through training artisans and young people the art of “Mother of Pearl, Olive wood and Ceramic”, then since 2017 and as a social economic need for the most people in need, it was developed to create jobs for them and teaches them the restoration techniques of ancient mother of pearl masterpieces, some of which are exposed in our show room, currently we have 20 people that are working in the center with a huge possibility to create jobs for more.

Our Mission

Our mission is twofold. First and foremost, we uphold and promote the cultural legacy of handcrafting that is unique to Bethlehem, the cradle of Christianity, by training artisans in centuries-old craftsmanship and by encouraging innovation for a living artform. Second, we ensure the preservation of our artistic heritage by creating meaningful work for artists to generate stable income for their families.

To achieve our mission, we take into consideration all aspects of responsible production. As a social business, we re-invest 100% of our revenues into the Center to continue to foster job creation and encourage economic stability. We are attentive to the health of our artists, prioritizing a safe and healthy work environment for all. We pay fair prices for our materials and fair wages to our artisans. Lastly, we are committed to creating high quality and authentic works of art that will never be made anywhere but in Bethlehem

OUR NAMESAKE

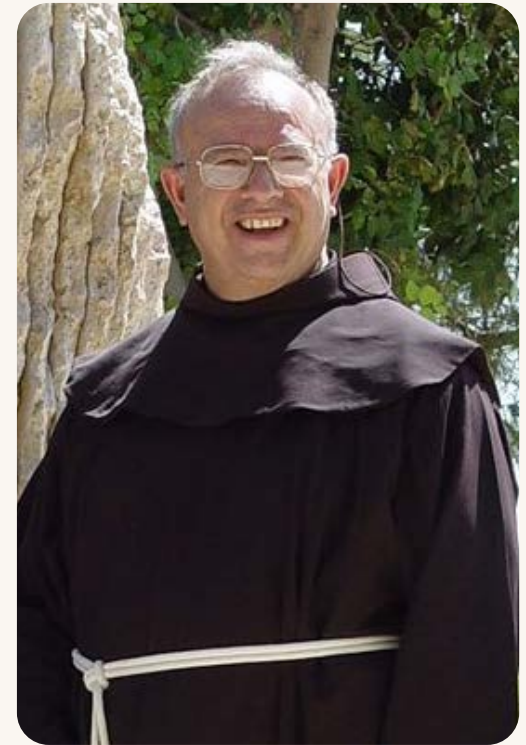

Michele Piccirillo (1944–2008) was a Franciscan priest and scholar of Byzantine archaeology. Born in Casanova di Arinola, Italy, he joined the Franciscan order in 1960, was ordained in 1969, and soon after joined the Franciscan Custody of the Holy Land.

Alongside his pastoral mission, he became a leading archaeologist in the Holy Land, excavating some of the earliest Christian churches. His work helped reconstruct over four centuries of lost art and history.

He uncovered major archaeological discoveries, including the mosaic in the Memorial of Moses at Mount Nebo, the Church of the Virgin in Madaba with its dedicatory inscription, and identified the ancient site of Umm al-Rasas (Kastron Mefaa), deepening our understanding of biblical history.

Father Piccirillo was especially dedicated to studying, documenting, and restoring Byzantine mosaics, viewing them as part of a wider artistic heritage rather than isolated works. He helped preserve and revive these traditions across Jordan, Syria, and Palestine.

His legacy includes co-founding the Madaba Mosaic School (now the Madaba School for Mosaic Art and Restoration) and contributing to preservation projects in Syria and Bethlehem, where he established the early foundations of the Piccirillo Handicraft Center.

OUR STORY

In Bethlehem, Father Piccirillo recognized the deep cultural and spiritual value of the Holy Land's sacred crafts, including olivewood, mother-of-pearl, and ceramic art. He understood how these traditions had evolved through centuries of interaction between pilgrims and local artisans, and he was determined to revive them at a time when they risked being lost to mass production.

With the support of the John Paul II Foundation and the Custody of the Holy Land, he worked with Father Ibrahim Faltas, founder and chairman of the Piccirillo Handicraft Center, to launch training courses in traditional handicrafts led by local masters. In 2008, they brought together an Italian coral master from Sardinia, Salvatore Giannottu, and the local mother-of-pearl master, Salim Ateek, to teach the first class of students. Many of these early students continue to produce artwork at the center today. Sadly, Father Piccirillo passed away shortly before the first course began, but his vision became the foundation of a renewed artistic movement in Bethlehem.

Later, Father Ibrahim Faltas continued the project and realized that training alone was not enough—artisans also needed real opportunities to sustain their craft. This led to the creation of the “Custodia Cross,” which transformed the initiative into a thriving social enterprise. During a visit, Latin Patriarch Pierbattista Pizzaballa saw one of the handcrafted crosses and requested a large production for pilgrims in Jerusalem. The students fulfilled the order successfully, marking a turning point that established the Piccirillo Handicraft Center as a sustainable source of income and artistic revival for the community.

At that time, the Piccirillo Center was open only during course instruction or production. Father Ibrahim felt strongly that the Center should provide more to the community than production work and arts courses, and he advocated to open the space as a community center in order to create more jobs and better serve the local community. The center began to work with vulnerable communities, providing meaningful work to people with disabilities, and others who benefitted from the center's expansion.

Today, the Piccirillo Handicraft Center employs many artisans and collaborates with local workshops to create and sell authentic Bethlehem handicrafts all over the world. As our reputation grows locally and internationally, so does our commitment to our founding motto, "With and for the people."

Our Standard

Many innovations come out of the Piccirillo Handicraft Center every year. The working of these crafts is not simply about preserving heritage, but about the innovation that is required to make it a living art. Our handicraft quality is world renowned. Our works have been commissioned as gifts for religious leaders such as Pope Francis, heads of state such as the Prime Minister of Italy and the President of the United States, and even footballers, such as Iker Casillas, ex-goalie and team captain for Real Madrid.

Moreover, we have the highest capacity for production in all of Bethlehem. While most workshops specialize in only a single craft, the Piccirillo Handicraft Center can provide all three, mother-of-pearl, olivewood and ceramics, making us a one stop shop for wholesalers who believe in offering their customers the highest quality and authenticity at an affordable price.

This mission is embodied in investing in land and people, and here is embodied the mission of the John Paul II Foundation in investing in land and people, and we make a dream and perpetuate the memory and legacy of this human being, the Franciscan, archaeologist and lover of the Holy Land, Father Piccirillo.

From here, too, we want the product of the traditional crafts preserved by the Franciscan friars, a watch made by Palestinian Special Needs hands and not qualified to do anything, you should not take with you a burden on their families, as a sign of pride and achievement for them and all of us this group of people within this partnership message.

Fr. Ibrahim Faltas
